TPBA Summer Institute

The University of Denver is offering a one-week intensive workshop on Transdisciplinary Play-based Assessment. This course will cover all areas of development and will include material from the Revised TPBA. Participants will be involved in discussion of course content and analysis of videotapes in the mornings and will participate in team evaluations in the afternoons.

When: Monday, August 4-8, 9-4 PM

Where: The Fisher Early Learning Center
University of Denver Campus,
1899 E. Evans Ave.

Cost: The fee for non-degree and non-credit students is $600 per person for the week.

Professor Toni Linder Bio

Toni is nationally and internationally recognized for developing Interdisciplinary Play-Based Assessment and Intervention, innovative techniques for working with special needs children and their families. Her influence within our Child, Family, and School Psychology Program, as well as the field of early childhood education, is profound. It also continues to grow, with her programs now being used in 49 states, 3 countries, and currently being pilot-tested for remote administration anywhere around the globe.
